Early Warning: Once per turning point, after an enemy operative performs an action in which it moves or is set up, you can interrupt to use this rule. If you do, each friendly RATLING operative (excluding OGRYN and BULLGRYN) within 6" of this operative and within 2" of that enemy operative can immediately perform a free Dash or Fall Back action in an order of your choice (choose separately for each), but it cannot move more than 3" during that action. In either case, each one cannot end that move within 2" of an enemy operative unless it's not visible to every enemy operative when it ends that move (if this isn't possible for an operative, it cannot move).

Beast: This operative cannot perform any actions other than Charge, Dash, Fall Back, Fight and Reposition. It cannot use any weapons that aren't on its datacard.

RATLING FACTION RULE

SCARPER

Despite their small stature, Ratlings are fleet of foot, using their speed and agility to outpace and evade their foes.

After each enemy operative's activation, before the next operative is activated, one friendly RATLING operative (excluding BULLGRYN, OGRYN and SNEAK) can perform a free Dash action, but it cannot end that move within 3" of an enemy operative unless it's not visible to every enemy operative when it ends that move.

Each friendly operative can only do this once per turning point, and cannot do so after the final activation of the turning point.

RATLING STRATEGY PLOY

SNIPER POSITIONS

Ratlings spend hours or even days selecting vantage points, ensuring that any position they take affords them effective cover and clear sight lines from which to pick off the advancing foe.

Whenever a friendly RATLING operative is more than 6" from enemy operatives and within 1" of Heavy terrain, the stationary profile of its rifle (if any) has the Silent weapon rule.

CRACK SHOTS

It is said that a Ratling can put a bullet through an opponent's eye socket from more than a thousand yards away.

Whenever a friendly RATLING operative is shooting an enemy operative more than 6" from it, if that friendly operative hasn't performed the Charge, Fall Back or Reposition action during the activation, or if it's a counteraction, its rifle (if any) has the Balanced weapon rule. Note that operative isn't restricted from performing those actions after shooting.

SHIFTY

Small of stature and well used to hiding from larger foes, Ratlings use terrain and shadow to their advantage.

Whenever a friendly RATLING operative (excluding OGRYN or BULLGRYN) has a Conceal order and is in cover, it cannot be selected as a valid target, taking precedence over all other rules (e.g. Seek, Vantage terrain) except being within 2".

FRONTLINE ASSAULT

Ogryns are brutish, muscular soldiers who are most effective when deployed as close combat troops.

Whenever a friendly RATLING BULLGRYN or friendly RATLING OGRYN operative within your opponent's territory or within 3" of an objective marker is shooting, fighting or retaliating, its weapons have the Balanced weapon rule.

RATLING FIREFIGHT PLOY

SURVIVAL INSTINCTS

Lacking physical strength and fortitude, Ratlings rely upon their reflexes and natural instincts to save themselves from harm.

Use this firefight ploy when an enemy operative is shooting against or fighting against a friendly RATLING operative (excluding OGRYN or BULLGRYN) and you're allocating a dice to block. If it's a normal success, it can block one unresolved critical success; if it's a critical success, it can block two unresolved successes (normal or critical).

SHARPSHOT

Ratlings can pick out enemies in the thick of even the most chaotic battles. Many soldiers have been saved from certain death by their precise fire.

Use this firefight ploy when a friendly RATLING operative is performing the Shoot action with a rifle and you're selecting a valid target. Having other friendly RATLING operatives within an enemy operative's control range doesn't prevent that enemy operative from being selected.

RATLING FIREFIGHT PLOY

LARCENOUS

Their diminutive size and gift for stealth makes Ratlings naturally skilled thieves.

Use this firefight ploy during a friendly RATLING operative's activation (excluding OGRYN or BULLGRYN). Until the end of that activation, that operative doesn't have to control a marker to perform the Pick Up Marker or mission actions that usually require this (this takes precedence over that action's conditions – it only needs to contest the marker), and having an enemy operative within its control range doesn't prevent it from doing so.

RATLING FIREFIGHT PLOY

SHOOT AND HIDE

A sniper is vulnerable once their position has been detected, thus Ratling sharpshooters are constantly sneaking away.

Use this firefight ploy after a friendly RATLING operative that has an Engage order performs the Shoot action with a rifle. If it's more than 3" from enemy operatives, or not visible to every enemy operative, you can change its order to Conceal.

RATLING FACTION EQUIPMENT

PURLOINED RATIONS

Ratlings have a well-earned reputation for greed. No field kitchen is safe from their thieving hands. It is not uncommon for a Ratling to settle a rumbling belly with a link of freshly liberated protein reconstitution prior to firing a killing shot.

Once per turning point, when a friendly RATLING operative is shooting with a rifle and you've rolled your attack dice, you can use this rule. If you do, improve the Hit stat of its rifle by 1 until the end of that sequence. This can allow you to apply the Hit stat change during an action (this takes precedence over the core rules).

LUCKY ROUND

Superstitious by nature, many Ratlings hold back a lucky round with which to target a large or powerful foe, kill an enemy that's wronged them, or make a particularly tricky shot.

Once per turning point, when a friendly RATLING operative is shooting with a rifle and you've rolled your attack dice, you can use this rule. If you do, that weapon has the Severe weapon rule until the end of that sequence.

STOLEN GOODS

Ratlings are notoriously light-fingered, capable of seizing intel and equipment from under the noses of their foes.

At the end of the Select Operatives step, roll one D3. If the result is:

- 1, you lose 1CP.
- 2, you gain 1CP.
- 3, your opponent loses 1CP.

RATLING FACTION EQUIPMENT

IMPROVISED ARMOUR

Such is the size of Ogryns that precious little standard-issue armour fits their bulky frames. Most are outfitted instead with makeshift plates forged from thick armour and tank tracks ripped from destroyed vehicles.

Whenever an operative is shooting a friendly RATLING BULLGRYN or friendly RATLING OGRYN operative, defence dice results of 5+ are critical successes.

PREVIOUS RULES COMMENTARIES

This section provides clarification on ambiguous and complex rules interactions.

Q: If an operative performs an action in which it moves or is set up outside of the Firefight phase, can a RATLING BATTLEMUTT still interrupt with its Early Warning rule?

A: Yes.

Q: Can you clarify what the Team Selection page means when saying 'Up to three times, instead of selecting one of these operatives, you can select one RATLING ploy to cost you OCP for the battle' in reference to BULLGRYN and OGRYN operatives?

A: A RATLING kill team always consists of one RATLING FIXER and ten additional operatives. Up to three of those additional operatives can be BULLGRYN or OGRYN. For each of those three that is not, you select a different RATLING operative and one ploy to cost you OCP for the battle.

RATLING OPERATIVES

FIXER

Appointed by their squadmates, Fixers are the leaders of Ratling kill teams. Whilst they are as skilled with a rifle as any fellow Ratling, they possess the raw cunning to deploy and command their diminutive troops to best effect.

BATLEMUTT

Battlemutts are predominantly utilised as sentries, their keen senses enabling them to detect enemies and alert their Ratling masters. The harnesses worn by Battlemutts allow them to also serve a secondary role as ammunition and supply bearers.

BOMBER

Some Ratlings have been known to develop a knack for tinkering with explosives. These self-taught sappers use tripwires, mines and remote explosives to confound any enemies attempting to outflank or infiltrate the Ratlings' positions.

HARDBIT

The most grizzled and experienced Ratlings are known by their kin as Hardbits. These warriors have often survived multiple deployments and learned to handle themselves in close combat as well as at extreme range.

BIG SHOT

Some Ratlings prefer to hunt bigger prey. Big Shots utilise weapons known as tankstopper rifles. These guns are jury-rigged with an array of purloined or repurposed power packs and weapon components that enable them to pierce heavy armour.

'SETTLE YOUR SIGHTS ON THE TARGET. TAKE A BREATH. HOLD. SQUEEZE. ONE DEAD ORK.'

- Ratling Sniper Forde Klapp

OGRYN

Burly abhumans originating from high-gravity planets, Ogryns are occasionally fielded alongside Ratlings. These hulking soldiers view Ratlings as their 'little mates', and are extremely protective of them.

BULLGRYN

Particularly obstinate and resilient Ogryns are selected to serve as Bullgryns. They are outfitted with thick armour, heavy shields and brutal melee weapons, enabling them to bludgeon their foes to death in the thick of combat.

RAIDER

Raiders are equipped with grappling hook launchers and climbing gear, allowing them to swiftly ascend to locations to establish overwatch.

SNEAK

Sneaks reach concealed positions before using their night vision goggles and suppressed rifles to detect and quietly eliminate key targets.

SNIPER

Whilst Ratlings are often underestimated by ally and foe alike, these marksmen are supremely deadly at long range.

SPOTTER

Ratling Spotters use magnoculars to detect targets and assist their squadmates in adjusting their aim when engaging distant foes.

STASHMASTER

A Ratling Stashmaster is responsible for stockpiling, carrying and distributing ammunition, supplies or even contraband.

VOX-THIEF

Vox-thieves utilise listening devices to intercept enemy communications. These devices also function as midrange vox-casters.

RATLINGS KILL TEAM

DESIGNER'S COMMENTARY

A Ratling kill team is unlike most others. Its operatives are small in stature (most of them anyway), but big in personality. In a fair fight, they'll be overpowered by those bigger than them, so they must use sneaky and cunning tricks to win.

With below average Wounds, Move and Save stats, Ratlings will struggle in a conventional game of Kill Team – likely overpowered by teams with better raw strength. To a Ratling though, this isn't a hindrance, but an opportunity. Overlooked for their small size and seemingly timid spirit, many an enemy has underestimated them, only realising their mistake when it's too late.

Ratlings are excellent snipers, as accurate as they are devastating. If the battle develops into a long-range firefight, you can be confident that having some expert sharpshooters in position – and benefiting from the Crack Shots and Sniper Positions strategy plays – will turn things in your favour. Like all snipers though, this comes at a cost of mobility, so you'll have to plan beforehand to ensure your firing lanes are well established.

Scarper is the team's faction rule, allowing you to dash your operatives into important positions. This is a flexible rule with numerous benefits. Firstly, as the best profile of a sniper rifle has the Heavy weapon rule, it will allow you to reposition slightly if an enemy cleverly avoids being a valid target. Secondly, it will allow your operatives to dash to safety if they are out of position – what better way to mitigate their lack of durability than not being attacked at all? Thirdly, it will allow you to get board control at key moments: contesting markers, preparing a threatening operative or setting up a key play. Try to master this rule and when to use it (and when not to), as it's a key sneaky trick for your Ratlings. Just remember you can't use it consecutively in the same turning point – once you use it, you must skip the next opportunity to use it again.

This kill team has numerous synergies that make it much greater than the sum of its smaller parts. For example, a sniper rifle is fearsome enough, but giving it Lethal 5+ from the Fixer, Seek Light from the Spotter (while ignoring obscured), and re-rolls from ammo caches is a deadly combo. Once you line all these up, your opponent will be wary of allowing their operatives to be a valid target. Because of this, it can be tempting to set up a defensive gun line to shoot your opponent off the killzone. However, canny foes will soon play defensively, safely concealing themselves in the midfield on objective markers and forcing your key shooters to waste valuable activations.

To attack such operatives, you'll need to move in close, which is a tough ask for a Ratling. The Fight action is a big weakness for them, and similarly, if they are too close to be in cover, enemy operatives' point-blank Shoot actions can be just as fatal. But if the victory points are in the midfield, how do you engage there? Fortunately, Ratlings have a few tools to help.

The Battlemutt is the ultimate escape system. If you move your operatives up early to perform important mission actions and score valuable VPs, you may find them vulnerable to counterattack. However, if a Battlemutt is nearby when an enemy operative moves in close to Shoot or Fight, you can interrupt the activation to move your operatives to safety. This can also be an excellent tactic for baiting your enemy: they move into your trap, you move everyone to safety, then follow up with a devastating Shoot action on the now out-of-position enemy operative. If you bear in mind you also have the Scarper faction rule and the Sneak's Evade rule, you have unprecedented opportunities to dodge, duck and dive your way out of trouble.

You can control enemy operatives' positions with the Bomber's mines and tripwires. In order to avoid the effects of these markers, your opponent will often manoeuvre around them, giving you some control over their movement. Carefully consider where you place these markers, as your opponent will have to steer clear of them or suffer their effects.

Once enemy operatives have control in the midfield, you'll need something to steal markers from under them. This is where key rules such as the Larcenous firefight ploy, the Stashmaster's Light-fingered rule and the Vox-thief's Intercept Communications unique action will come in handy – giving you the necessary tools to get what you need from markers, even if your opponent has them seemingly controlled. Pair any of these with the Raider's Slingshot unique action (with which it grappling hooks its way around the killzone) and you have a combo that's as effective as it is hilarious!

There is one brave Ratling who is up for a melee fight – the Hardbit. They aren't a close combat powerhouse like other kill teams can produce but, in the right situation, this plucky knife-wielder can be fantastic. It can charge on a Conceal order, keeping it safe from later counterattacks, and with improved stats when doing so, it's great for guaranteeing the necessary damage needed to finish off a stubborn operative.

What's more, whenever Light or Heavy terrain is within the Hardbit's control range, you resolve the first dice when it's retaliating. This ambushing trick is great for dealing an extra bit of damage, or making a wounded enemy operative think twice about charging in.

Despite all these tricks, there comes a time when you may need to just go on Engage orders and get stuck in up close. When this is required, call on some willing Bullgryns and Ogryns to help you out. You'll miss out on some free ploys, but you'll get raw power to bash skulls and absorb damage. These operatives aren't subtle, but they'll allow your more sneaky operatives to do their thing around them. Just remember they're slow-witted brutes, so you'll need to sufficiently support them to perform mission actions and the like.

Ratlings are a team with a learning curve. You'll need to spend some time figuring out their playstyle and synergies, as they can be unforgiving if you don't maximise their rules. A Ratling's life has always been a challenge though, and one they relish, so putting in the time to understand them will pay dividends once you turn their perceived weaknesses into strengths. If you bring it all together, you'll have a team full of uniqueness, sneakiness and charm that's rewarding to play well.
