LUMINETH REALM-LORDS

GLITTERING PHALANX

This Spearhead army consists of the following units:

GENERAL

- ◆ Scinari Cathallar

UNITS

- ◆ 5 Vanari Auralan Sentinels
- ◆ 5 Vanari Auralan Sentinels
- ◆ 10 Vanari Auralan Wardens
- ◆ 5 Vanari Bladelords

The culture of the Lumineth enshrines subtlety and precision over overwhelming force. While the aelves of Hysh can muster truly vast warhosts when necessity demands, this is seen as a needless and crass expenditure of lives. Far better, they believe, to send small phalanxes of warriors to those places where their skills can have the greatest impact – be that eradicating some troublesome warband or burning a great white-flame rune of arcane purification into the earth at a key nexus.

Auralan Wardens, armed with pikes of burning sunmetal, are the rock against which enemies break; they do not fulfil this duty through crude and bloody-minded endurance but rather by drawing upon the energies of aetherquartz to speed pre-emptive strikes. Auralan Sentinels loose swift arrows, bleeding the foe by precise degrees. Incautious usage of aetherquartz has led to disaster in the past, and so each of these shining formations will be accompanied by a single mote of darkness – a Scinari Cathallar, skilled in turning the negative emotions stored within aetherquartz against the enemy. Cathallars are protected at all times by the war-sages of the Bladelords, each willing to give their life for the good of the realms.

‘We have already peered into the darkness of the soul. Our duty spurs no fear in us – only resolve.’

– Asa’nai, the Veiled Sage

KEYWORDS CORE

It is the noble duty of a Scinari Cathallar to take the spiritual anguish locked within spent aetherquartz and redirect it against their enemies. They are the lone point of darkness in the brilliance of a Lumineth line, capable of wielding despair itself as a weapon. The burdens of a Cathallar forever mark them out from their fellows, for the Lumineth are a people who shun emotion where possible. It is a task that the Cathallars accept without complaint; few know better than they the dangers of using aetherquartz unchecked.

Bladelords are amongst the most elite Lumineth warriors. Each has formed a deep connection with the essence of their weapon and views combat as a series of elegant and artful equations. To kill with the perfectly calculated cut or degree of force is seen as the greatest of virtues – not out of a sense of ego or self-aggrandisement, they say, but because it brings them closer to true enlightenment. Bladelords serve as guardians to the mages of the Scinari, souls who share their quest for mental perfection and will give their lives in service of their honoured charges.

KEYWORDS INFANTRY

The bow is considered a noble weapon in Lumineth society, for the ability to send an arrow soaring through the radiant skies appeals greatly to aelven sensibilities – as does avoiding the need to close with their base adversaries. Sentinels are the archers of the Vanari, each having trained until they can shoot a foe through the eye from great distance. Their bows use a complex series of strings that allow them to moderate range and power, and their armour shines with the power of Hysh, capable of temporarily blinding any foes who weather their storm of sunmetal-tipped arrows.

The Auralan Wardens are the lynchpins of the Vanari military. These phalanxes of skilled aelven warriors embody the Tyrionic traditions of their people; they do not flinch in the face of danger, nor do they hesitate to wield their pikes to impale oncoming enemies. The Wardens' strength is built upon unity of purpose and a discipline that only those as long-lived as the aelves can hope to master.
